To Those Who Love Their Community:

As the Sanctuary, Inc. Capital Campaign begins and we look ahead to the fulfillment of its vision, I invite you to pause and reflect on the role that community has played in your own life and on the quiet moments when support, safety, and compassion truly mattered.

There may have been:

A time when you needed a hand up.

A time when you were able to extend the same kindness to someone else.

A place that offered peace when life felt overwhelming.

A place that felt safe.

A place where friendships were formed and belonging was found.

A community of people committed to you without judgment.

A moment when you were given a second chance.

A path that helped you rediscover your own self-worth.

As you consider each of these reflections, I hope a memory stirs, one that encourages you to learn more about what Sanctuary has accomplished not only in your own county but throughout neighboring communities as well.

Every day, families facing deeply painful and destabilizing circumstances find healing and hope through the expert guidance, compassion, and unwavering commitment of Sanctuary's leadership and staff. Lives change when people are met with care, dignity, and understanding.

If Sanctuary's mission speaks to you, I invite you to consider being a part of this next chapter, to hold this work in your heart and in your prayers. Together, we can ensure Sanctuary remains a place of hope for those who need it most. For when they have the courage to begin again, they will also have the support from our loving community.

With gratitude,

Marsha Garnett
